A PREFATORY NOTE ON THE DRAWINGS

It is a pleasure for me to accede to Mr. Keppel's request that I write a prefatory note for this catalogue of recent water-colors and pastels by Childe Hassam—an artist possessed of a rare and distinguished talent.

Mr. Hassam is never more happy in his results than when working in water-color: the medium is thoroughly congenial to him. The artist has not done anything finer than the Isles of Shoals series, which were painted three or four years ago and shown last winter. These drawings are splendid interpretations of nature and disclose a very sensitive vision. They are possessed of much style and show a strong decorative feeling, besides displaying the artist's love of radiant and vibrating color, which is invariably handled with much tact and discretion. Technically, they are lessons in what water-colors should be, with their broad and vigorous washes, in which simplification and elimination have played a great part. They are drawn as Sargent employs this medium, and as Whistler did before him.

The water-colors in the present exhibition are for the greater part more in the nature of studies and sketches, but they are very delightful and display in an adequate manner the artist's gift of being able to make rapid color notes full of beauty and style. Regard with what mastery the little marine showing the long wake of a boat has been drawn, how limpid the water is and how delicious the color. All these drawings possess a very personal impress, an autographic quality which marks them as being unmistakably from Mr. Hassam's brush. They are very spontaneous and joyous, for always, as I wrote ten years ago in the course of a study of Mr. Hassam's work, on the occasion of a representative exhibition of his paintings and water-colors, is his vision fresh and virile.

A. E. GALLATIN.
